

About the Artist ... Dennis T. Miner

I grew up in Rochester New York and attended the Rochester Institute of Technology. After graduating with a BFA in advertising design I started work in printing production and later as a typography and AV consultant. In time I moved on to become president of a sales promotion agency. I was also owner and director of a vocational graphic arts school. I taught layout design, marker illustration, perspective and introduction to photography. During my college years I was a national finalist in an oil painting competition presented by the National Society of Arts and Letters. The painting I submitted won 1st place for the state competition in Arizona.

My love for oil painting was put on hold during most of my career. I now captain boats part time and live in Saint Marys Georgia. Finally I have the time to clean my brushes and get back to something I truly enjoy. I hope you like the view of the world from my palette".

You can view my artwork at dennisminer.wordpress.com