I have always been interested in art, from graphite drawing to oil painting. Coming from a family of artists, my mother and sister are both accomplished artists, as well as my sister being an art instructor. Other than drawing and painting classes in high school, my instruction has been from my books, workshops, and all other methods I could find.

In looking for a medium to work with in my busy schedule, I discovered colored pencil. It took me several years to acquire the techniques, and the methods that would best work for me.

The ability to control and apply transparent layers of pencil has fulfilled my need in accomplishing fine details of realism that I most enjoy. It will be a journey of discovery, since colored pencil is just beginning to evolve into a fine art form, being part of this experience is a privilege.
