Biography

Glenda was born in Waycross, Georgia in 1937. In her representational still life paintings, Glenda brings simple objects shimmering to life in transfigured light. Her landscapes capture the light and shadows so prevalent in the Georgia coastal area.

A comprehensive collection she calls "Vanishing Neighborhoods of St. Simons Island" has become a popular touring exhibit of historical and artistic significance, and is due to be published in the near future.

Glenda has had many solo shows and her paintings are in collections throughout the United States. As one art critic sums up Glenda's work: "Her response to her subject is vivid and sensitive, just as her response to the oil medium is knowing and luxurious".
